Hi Ashcroft, and staff,

I saw you (Ashcroft) on Larry King.

While I can understand your desire to fight terrorism. Isn't that what the new Homeland Defense office is for?

Saying that you dropped the Microsoft case to focus on terrorism is a total bunch of after the fact crap. The only reason you are saying that is because you are now realizing how big of a mistake you made, and are trying to hide behind the mistake behind terrorism. We won't let you.

I didn't realize that a bunch of idiots flying planes into the WTC cause federal and civil laws to be suspended. I will not support anyone who believes that laws designed to protect consumers, entrepreneurship, and the fundamental availability of the American Dream within the United States can be selectively enforced.

Don't give me the crap about being too busy to enforce anti-trust. The reality is, it took more effort to go out of your way and cut a side deal with Microsoft than just doing *nothing* and letting the legal system work, the way it is designed to, and the way it should have been.

When a total consumer oriented guy like Ralph Nader who has no affiliation with high technology stands up and says this is horrible for consumers, I don't know how you can say, with a straight face that it was good for consumers.

Your imperialist, Al Capone like decision to stomp on an on-going analysis and investigation tells me you guys are either idiots that don't understand the issues, or you are anti-entrepreneur. So which is it?

Again, I do not wish to offend the people within the DoJ who worked hard on the Microsoft case, I salute you, applaud you, and sympathize with you. I know you didn't sign the agreement. I am holding Bush and Ashcroft directly responsible for their actions, not you. I know the DoJ has many wonderful staff, and I appreciate, so very much what they have done for America.

I am holding Bush and Ashcroft responsible for their actions, and I am counting the days until 2004 to campaign against them and get them booted from office to be replaced by people who believe in capitalism, the American Dream.

You may have made a feudalistic, unethical dictatorial friend in Microsoft, but you have made an enemy of high tech. That's some 10 million people versus 30,000 or so Microsoft employees. Pretty stupid if you ask me.
